

Sanjeev Bhalla

Sanjeev Bhalla, MD, is a professor of radiology and chief of cardiothoracic imaging at Mallinckrodt Institute of Radiology (MIR) at Washington University School of Medicine in St. Louis. He also co-directs the body CT service at Barnes-Jewish Hospital. In 2015, Bhalla was named vice chair for education, where he helps oversee MIR's programs for medical students, prospective trainees, current trainees and alumni. An alumnus of MIR's diagnostic radiology residency and fellowship programs, he was named chief resident in 1998 with Christine Menias, MD and fellow of the year in 2000.

Bhalla currently serves as deputy editor of Radiology Cardiothoracic Imaging and is an active member of various organizations, including the American Roentgen Ray Society and the Society of Thoracic Radiology, where he was president in 2021. He is the current Cardiopulmonary Trustee for the American Board of Radiology and a Lifetime Honored Educator Award from the Radiological Society of North America, where he was also named to the Board of Directors in 2020. In 2021 he was selected as the American Roentgen Ray Society Teacher of the Year and the Association of Chief Residents (A3CR2) Teacher of the Year. In 2019, he was selected as a member of the Fleischner Society. Bhalla earned his medical degree from Columbia University in New York and his bachelor's from Yale University in New Haven, Connecticut, USA.

He is most proud of having won the MIR teacher of the Year 3 times and a distinguished teacher over 20 times.
